The Probable Programme - Harriso Worked Up-The Democratic Policy-Discussing the River and Barbor Bill.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, August 15,-The average

Republican senator is keeping pretty quiet about the proceedings of the caucus last night, but here and there enough has leaked out to show that the speechmaking was of a very animated character, and there seems to be no doubt that the Republicans are badly divided regarding the disposition to be made of the force bill. It has been thought until now that the Quay resolution would be adopted, but the impression is rather to-day that the Rules Committee will probably not report it to the Senate. To do so would be sitting down so hard on Senators Hoar and Spooner that a split would be made in the party that could hardly be clossed in two years. It is also the prevailing belief that if the Quay resolution is not reported, none of the other resolutions will be acted upon either by the Rules Committee.

The Deficiency Bill.

[By tetegraph to the Dispatch.]

WASHINGTON, August 15.—The Senate Committee on Appropriations to-day completed the consideration of the general deficiency appropriation bill and reported it to the Senate with a number of amendments. With one exception these do not

A well-informed man who has been locking carefully into the situation seems to think that all of the resolutions will be allowed to similar that the tariff bill will be discussed fully and freely, and that some time in September it will be disposed of. Then the appropriation and some other bills will be passed, and it may be that in order to soothe the feelings of Spooner, Hoar, and several others the election bill may be allowed to come up long enough to enable lowed to come up long enough to ena-e few fire enters to explode some speech orce bill go over until next winter.

Undoubtedly the opposition to the force bill is becoming stronger each day among the Republicans of the Senate. Mr. Quay seems to know what he is about and it is the general opinion here that he is sure of his ground. He would not have gone into this thing without knowing that he was likely to succeed in carrying his point. The violent abuse of the New York Tribane and the Philadelphia Press of Senators Quay, Cameron, and other Republicans who do not think it wise to press the force bill, is helping every day to bury that measure. Then, again, the insolent attitude of Boss Reed is helping to make the measure unpopular. ole weight of his Administration I

The Republicans of the Finance Committee are now wrestling with the reciprocity question, and in the course of a few days it is thought they will arrive at some conclusion. LOUISVILLE, Kv., August 15.—A special letter to the Courier-Journal from Captain E. H. Gnither, in charge of the troops in Hazard, Percy county, says: There have been no disturbances whatever since court began, nor is there any likelihood of any. Every outlaw left the place wher the troops came and are not likely to return until the soldiers leave. Before the soldiers came there were four saloons run openly, and the keepers of these places and their hangers-on were the chief disturbers of the peace. It was a common occurrence for them to defy officers and shoot through houses. They compelled the police judge to resign, ran the county judge and sherif out of town, and ran things to suit themselves. They, no doubt, burned the court-house this summer. The Court, under the protection of the troops, is doing wonderful work. Buck Fagat has been convicted of malicious shooting and given two years in the penitentiary, and for misdemeanors every man tired has been convicted and in each case they are given the extent of law.

ed to our district assemblies along the road by the first mail.

The condition at present is a great improvement upon the strike as it stood at 7 o'clock P. M. August 8th. The best of feeling prevails along the line, all our members being hopeful and remaining staunch and true to the cause. The reports which are constantly being received here that the company are moving freight as well as passengers are entirely untrue and none is being moved to any extent, and now they still refuse to receive all shipments of freight offered them, which entirely disproves Mr. Webb's assertion.

The effort of the company to incite our people to riot and violence by employing Pinkerton's men, with clubs and Winchesters, has so far been an utter failure. Caution all of our brothers to remain firm and vigilant and all will soon end in our favor.

Sir James Fergusson, speaking for the Government, said no adequate judgment could be formed on the negotiations or on the diplomatic correspondence on the subject until the House possessed Lord Salisbury's final reply, which could not be out upon the table until it had been presented to the United States Secretary of State. Cable dispatches just received intimate that this had been done. When the whole correspondence was published he believed the House would be satisfied with the spirit and manner in which the negotiations had been conducted on the side of the British Government. THE LONDON PRESS ON THE EPISODE.

LONDON, August 16.—Commenting on the Bebring sea episode in Parliament, the Times declares that it confirms the conclusion that the conduct of the American Government in rejecting Sir Julian Pauncefote's modus viscadi in instructing American cruisers to dismantle British vessels and in breaking off negotiations evinces an arbitrariness and a contempt for reason happily rare in international relations nowadays. Lord Salisbury's firmness, says the Home Government is not as they sometimes affect to think, a mere funnel for diplomatic notes. It is childish of Mr. Blaine to treat the fact that we and the colonists refrained from fishing as the foundation of an obligation not to fish.

The Standard says: The thunders in which Mr. Blaine has been dealing are of the most transparent and artificial kind. From first to last the taint of domestic American politics infects the negotiations. Even if America possesses the exclusive rights claimed England would be iustified in resenting most strongly the mode by which the pretention was made good. The article concludes thus: The position as it stands is not one that the friends of good will between the nations can view without misgivings.

The Chronicle says: We would think lit-The Chronicle says: We would think lit-tle of Lord Salisbury's diplomacy if these dispatches ended the tale. England and America may have differences, but they must remain friends. The Chronicle hopes that Mr. Blaine's rejection of Lord Salis-bury's proposals will be only transient, as a protest against an apparent breach of faith on Lord Salisbury's part.

country malf naked. A genuine "shallow bloke" knew not the luxury of a shirt; he scorned to incase his feet in boots, always preferring to "pad the hoof," i. e., go harefooted. Frequently these "shallow blokes" travelled in "schools," that is, in companies of four, five, and six, and wherever they went they made the streets hideous with their unearthly howling of nantical ditties, in which the refrain, "And the stormy winds did blow-ow-ow!" was always conspicuous.

These men were anatomical curiosities. One would be minus an arm, another would lack a leg, a third would exhibit a withered limb done up in tight bandages. Scarcely one of them would be found physically perfect. They would stretch in a line across the street, the two extreme men pushing their hats in the face of every passer-by, and sundry curses, somtimes loud as well as deep, followed the "uncharitable" pedestrians, while all the blessings of Heaven were invoked on the head of the "kind gentleman" who dropped a copper in the obtrusive chapeau.

These "shallow blokes" were a terror to the ordinary tramps. They were noted as being the greatest blackguards travelling. Their blasphemous talk was simply hideous, and shocked even old and well-seasoned tramps. Happily they are now nearly an extinct race. It is a fact, though not generally known, that scores of these vagabonds mutilated themselves for the purpose of working upon the feelings of a charitable public. One of the most common methods of "acquiring" a withered limb was to bind it tightly with strips of linen and thus stop the circulation of the blood. Loathsome-looking wounds were manufactured by inserting in these bandages an old copper coin, which gradually ate into the flesh.

A somewhat pleasant contrast to these timerants were the "lurkers," more intelligibly described as "begging letter gentlemen," a class of men not unknown at the present day. They would carry a neat little roll of pictures, two or three gentlemen's combs in a little satchel, or any other light and fancy article, just to

Treatment of Prisoners. (Raleigh News and Observer.)

From the Dispatch we learn that Dr. J.
William Jones will ask the Century for space to present the Confederate side of the treatment of Union prisoners during the war as a sort of reply to articles on the same subject from the Federal point of view recently printed in that magazine.

This is a matter of serious import. The South has been stigmatized in every country of the world as having practiced great cruelty and barbarity towards the Federal prisoners, and despite our well-known characteristics of honorable bearing, of kindly disposition and gentle courtesy, many persons have been brought to believe that the horrors of Andersonville were the result of mere wanton cruelty.

It would have been very remarkable if, when our people had no medicines for themselves, they could have supplied them to the Federal soldiers. It would likewise have been remarkable that when we ourselves were suffering for the ordinary necessaries of life, we should have furnished what we did not have to these people.

But in this case it was not the remarkable that happened. We had not patent-medicines and no flour bread and coffee and tea and things of that kind, and so these Federal prisoners had to go without. Did they suffer much inconvenience and man was free to express his sentiments; if so, we hope that the leading magazine of America will not be closed to the South in a matter so full of interest. New York, August 15 .- The disappointment in the street over the small acceptances of sliver and the slowness of purchases of bonds by the Treasury caused a renewal of hesitation in the stock market to-day. There is no diminution of confidence in the ultimate permanent easing up Two of the Indians belonging to the klamath Agency nine, who are the champions of klamath county, are in the city arranging for a game with the palefaces of of money by the action of the new silver law, and, as the law is mandatory, 4,500,000 ounces must be purchased within the month and, from arranging for a game with the paletaces of Ashland. They want to put $600 worth of ponies against $500 cash, the game to be played the day before circus. They say they want lots of money to see "the elephant" with, and being enthusiastic over their own ability, want to get it in spite of the hard times in Klamath. When these siwashes attempt to bat one of Van Tassel's curves, poor Lo's untutored cranium will think the ball is "hoodooed." Their tally-sheet will look as though a cyclone had struck it. the market so much more relief. The full effects of this are not expected to be seen for from thirty to sixty days, however, and it is to purchases of bonds that the street is looking for im-mediate relief. SILVER HIGHER IN LONDON.

Silver was higher to London to-day and there was again considerable speculation in silver certificates at somewhat higher prices. The importants in the market were almost entirely develd of interest though the demand was sufficient to view of the lack of efferings to keep prices moving slowly in an upward direction.

There was considerable demand, supposed to be for account of a prominent Chicago operator, who is thought to be covering his shorts. These were supposed to be particularly heavy in Atchican and Lackawanna, and the latter stock was particularly stong. Unusually Early Cotton [By telegraph to the Dispatch.] COLUMBIA, S. AN ATTACK ON "Q."

A violent attack was made in the last hour upon Burlington and Quincy and Rock Island, but while the former broke 1½ per cent. to 101 it recovered as rapidly to 162½, its flual loss being only ½ per cent. Rock Island was especially strong until the last hour, when it lost all of its early alvance, closing unchanged. Missouri Pacific displayed the most even strength, and it alone in making material advance, its gain being 1 per cent. The early buoyancy was in great measure due to buying for foreign account, but after that demand had been satisfied there was a reaction of meagre proportions followed by a steady though slow appreciation, which lasted until the raid in the last hour.
